

Trevor Potter Talks to Washington Post on Trump's Campaign Manager

04.30.2019

The Washington Post

The day before special counsel Robert S. Mueller III submitted his report to the Justice Department in March, Washington was abuzz with what revelations it might contain about contacts between the 2016 Trump campaign and foreign officials. But President Trump's 2020 campaign manager, Brad Parscale, was an ocean away, delivering a paid speech to a room full of Romanian politicians and policy elites.

...

"It appears the Trump political organization has learned nothing from 2016 about the dangers of senior campaign personnel's entanglement with foreign money," said Trevor Potter, president of the nonpartisan Campaign Legal Center.

Trevor Potter also leads the Political Law Group at Caplin & Drysdale, Chartered.

For the full article, please visit The Washington Post's website.

Excerpt taken from the article "Trump's Campaign Manager Gave a Paid Speech in Romania, Prompting Ethics Concerns" by Michael Birnbaum and Ioana Burtea for The Washington Post.

Attorneys

Trevor Potter

Related Practices/Industries

Political Law