Washington, D.C.—September 3, 2013: International Tax Review's 2014 edition of World Tax features Caplin & Drysdale as a leading firm in Washington, D.C., for its international tax practice. World Tax is a guide to the world's top tax law and accounting practices. The firm's Tier 2 ranking is based on research and recommendations from corporate tax directors and advisers at multinational corporations, and advisory firms around the globe.

"Caplin & Drysdale has earned an international reputation for advising multinational corporations in complex, cross-border tax matters," said Patricia Gimbel Lewis, a partner in the firm's International Tax Group. "The firm's attorneys have considerable depth in corporate tax planning, transactional matters, transfer pricing, international Competent Authority interactions, offshore financial account compliance, and all manner of tax controversies. Being recognized by both clients and peers in the global tax community for our substantial experience in this area is a testament to the firm's commitment to client service and excellence."
